Birds of Prey Sessions

A unique opportunity to create stunning photographs of magnificent Birds of Prey under controlled conditions

The Triple "D" is proud to announce the continuation of the "Birds of Prey" photography sessions in 2011-12. Lynn Vaught of "Wildlife Return" will again exhibit her birds in natural settings for photography and artist groups organized by the Triple "D". Wildlife Return is a rehabilitation center dedicated to the care of injured, ill and orphan wildlife.

You can expect to photograph a variety of raptors. In the past, Wildlife Return has had numerous resident raptors to include: Bald Eagle, Golden Eagle, American Kestrel, Red Tail Hawk, Northern Goshawk, Barred Owl, Great Horned Owl, Saw-whet Owl, Peregrine Falcon, Western Screech Owl and others.

Lynn is dedicated to the rehabilitation of the wildlife that comes to her for help, with the ultimate goal of releasing those back to the wild that can sustain themselves. Other than her resident birds, it is not always possible to determine what birds will be available for exhibition until the time of the photo session.

What the Triple "D" and Wildlife Return will guarantee is a full session, consisting of several hours, allowing adequate time to photograph, sketch and observe her "Birds of Prey". Most sessions are schedule to commence with early morning light. These sessions are offered in conjunction with some of Triple "D"'s monthly wildlife photography specials and workshops. This "Birds of Prey" session is designed as an optional session. Individuals can choose to participate in the special or just the "Birds of Prey" session.
