

Triple “D” Mentor Series

The Triple “D” is proud to announce an exciting new program in 2007 called the “Mentor Series”. We have invited some of the best professional wildlife photographers in the industry to participate in this program for amateur photographers. This program is offered to create an exclusive opportunity for participants to work personally and closely with a one of the best wildlife photographers. Participants will not only be signing up to photograph the Triple “D” animals, but can receive advice in many aspects of photography. This could include reviewing of portfolios, equipment options, personal guidance the technical aspect of wildlife photography and assistance in refining techniques.

Participants can expect to be on filming location waiting for the first glimpses of early morning light to photograph several animal species pre-selected by you and the instructor. After a full morning of photographing in the field, you will return to the Triple “D” Ranch for a morning snack and refreshments and relax in our conference room to review images and receive instruction. You may again return to the field in the late afternoon to attend several additional filming sessions with the soft evening light. Each three-day session will consist of a maximum group of four participants with your selected mentor. A forth day will be available for one participant only to continue photographing and receive personal guidance from the instructor. The cost of a three-day session is $3,200 with an additional forth day for one individual at $2,000 This program is designed to allow participants an exclusive opportunity with some of the best-recognized wildlife photographers and instructors in the industry. Our objective is for all participants to depart the Triple “D” with a wealth of information provided by the mentor and a memorable experience of a lifetime.

How to select the Mentor of your choice: Click on the photo of the instructor you would like join and review his brief autobiography. You will observe some of their images that have originated from the Triple “D”. If additional information is needed, please contact the Triple “D” office. A registration from is included for your convenience.
